

An IL by Ari, Mike, and Dan
(no experience necessary)

What's an "IL," you ask? An IL, or "Interactive Literature," is an event where you are given a character – a description of some person in a fictional world – and act out that person's life for 4-6 hours. You do what (s)he would do in almost every sense of the word (although, of course, if your character is injured or killed, only your dignity is hurt). Whether that character is smuggling contraband, negotiating for a galactic treaty, committing a murder, vying for power, or saving his crew from aliens, you're the one doing it – and it's another real person playing the other negotiators, the aliens, or the murder victim. It's great acting, great fun, and lots of cool people all creating a world with their imaginations. Come join us!

THE SECRET of EPSILON ERIDANI:

An IL coming to Mathcamp
the evening of Sunday, August 4.

Sign up here and we'll write you a character!